FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

ebuting at NY Tabletop Show in October, New Limoges Porcelain Tableware Collections from Jacqueline Cambata Designs Evoke the Elegance of Nature and Asian History

An unusual blend of historical images, vivid color, meticulous craftsmanship and social entrepreneurship debuts at the New York Tabletop Show October 22-24. Jacqueline Cambata Designs launches two new collections of luxury tableware using imagery from the Mughal Empire of 16th century India on exquisite Limoges porcelain.

Utilizing techniques from Persian, Indian and European art traditions on porcelain manufactured in Limoges, France, the Shangri-La and Elephant Shantih tableware collections feature colorful gazelles and elephants, flowers and birds amidst intricate natural elements and opulent gold details. “These place settings invite conversation and create an elegant backdrop for a feast of the senses,” says Jacqueline Cambata. “Dining in splendor nourishes the soul as well as the body.”

Ms. Cambata grew up in five countries, including India, where she became fascinated with pictures and stories from the reign of Akbar the Great, whose empire stretched from Bangladesh to Kashmir. Having lived where many families lacked the basic necessities of life, Ms. Cambata passionately believes that business can help eliminate global poverty. A portion of profits from her new collections will go to help women in India through microfinance, so that the pleasures of the table also uplift the lives of those far away.

Jacqueline Cambata Designs will be distributed by Julia Watts LLC, 41 Madison Avenue, 9th floor, in New York City.
